Hanukkah Party Brings Light To a Gray and Rainy Sunday

by Karen Knee

Cantor Yael Fischman and Rabbi Saul Oresky light Hanukkah candles.

The clouds were heavy and gray, but inside Mishkan Torah the mood on December 10 was festive and bright. About 50 people, from toddlers to seniors, attended the free event, which took place on the third of Hanukkah's eight days.

Children from Mishkan Torah's Karp Family Hebrew School performed a stage adaptation of Hershel and the Hanukkah Goblins by Eric Kimmel. Maggie Brown starred as Hershel, a clever and resourceful traveler who outwits a series of increasingly fearsome goblins (played by the versatile Emmanuel Gold) and brings the holiday of Hanukkah back to the town of Ostropol. Dmitri Barnes played the town's rabbi, and Theo Kliman narrated. Isaac Hoskey and Brian Needelman provided music and sound effects. Cantor Yael Fischman directed the play and led

GHI Holds Town Hall Meeting Discusses Budget, New Project

by Carol Griffith

The Greenbelt Homes, Inc., (GHI) town hall meeting held December 5 was the first in-person meeting GHI has held since December 2019, announced President Stefan Brodd as he opened the meeting to a round of applause. About 75 GHI members attended the meeting in which the new General Manager, James Claggett Jr., was formally introduced, the 2024 budget was presented and the upcoming pipe replacement program was discussed. Members were encouraged to ask questions directly in the meeting or submit their questions for later follow-up by the appropriate staff person.

Although Claggett has already met many members in an informal meet-and-greet when hired in July, many members were introduced to him for the first time at the town hall. He discussed his background and prior experiences (see November 23, 2023, issue of the News Review) and presented his goals and objectives for GHI. After learning how GHI works and reviewing current processes, he wants to build on the "investment and commitment" of the members in pursuing such priorities as infrastructure issues and continuing the relationship with the city to mutual benefit.

Budget

The 2024 budget was approved by the Board of Directors in November after two readings in open meetings. As presented by GHI Director of Finance Joseph Perry and Treasurer Chuck Hess, the budget has increases in real estate taxes and insurance costs causing a 3.4 percent increase in operating charges, which will be collected through member fees. The Board also approved an overall 4 percent increase in employee salaries for

Council Decides on Process For Filling Their Vacant Seat

by Michael Zelif

On Monday, December 11, the Greenbelt City Council addressed the issue of filling the vacancy on the council caused by the recent death of Councilmember Ric Gordon. The Greenbelt City Charter, in section 32 under Elections, defines this process: "If a seat on the council becomes vacant, the remaining members of council by a majority vote shall, as soon as possible, elect a person to fill the unexpired term. If three or more council seats are vacant at the same time, the board of elections shall call at the earliest date a special election to fill said vacancies for the unexpired terms."

Mayor Emmett Jordan interpreted this language as clear in stating that the present city council has the authority and responsibility to act as soon as possible in appointing a candidate to fill the vacancy. Jordan pointed

Vacancy Process

Any qualified voter who is at least 18 years of age may be nominated for the office of member of council upon filing at the office of the City Clerk:

- A nominating petition signed by not fewer than 50 voters;
- A written acceptance of the nomination;
- Such other statements as may be required by this charter or by law;
- Completed financial disclosure form;
- A statement of intent will be required. Explain why you are seeking to fill the vacant council seat. One page maximum;
- A résumé.

Upon the finding by the City Clerk that the nomination petition, the written acceptance and such other statements as may be required are in order, the name of such nominee shall be authorized to be brought forth to council for consideration of appointment to the vacant council seat.

Tuesday, December 12, is the first day to obtain papers and file a nomination petition.

Wednesday, December 20 by 5 p.m. is the last day to file a nomination petition.

Holiday Publication Deadlines

The News Review office will be closed on Monday, December 25. Submission deadlines will be two days early:

- Saturday, December 23, 2 p.m. Articles/photos over 700 words.
- Saturday, December 23, 6 p.m. All letters to the editor (300 word limit).
- Tuesday, December 26, 2 p.m. Articles/photos under 700 words, photographs not associated with a story.

to the charter's guideline in section 31 that states, "The candidates receiving votes amounting to forty (40) percent or more of the number of voters voting at the election, shall be declared elected," pointing out that eight candidates in the November city election had received 40 percent or more of the vote for the seven seats on city council. Therefore, one option would be for the present six members to appoint that eighth candidate to fill the vacancy. Jordan reiterated that, with a lot of work ahead in 2024 on, for example, the city budget, council must act promptly. Councilmember Kristen Weaver offered results from her search through Greenbelt News Review archives on past actions by council when faced with a vacancy. She found 17 instances when the council had filled a vacancy and much variation in the actions taken. The unique factor this time, Weaver added, was that the vacancy had occurred so soon after the election. One common feature was that there was usually

Plastic Bag Ban

Coming January 1, Greenbelt will be banning plastic bags in retail stores citing it as “a significant source of litter.” If the city is serious about litter, why is trash allowed to lay untouched all over the place. It is a regular daily occurrence to see mounds of trash in the parking lots of Beltway Plaza and Greenway Center (specifically CVS), other retail establishments and even exiting off the BW Parkway in Greenbelt when I’m driving home from work. The Bring Your Own Bag Bill has not been promoted at local businesses with signage, which will have many residents in shock when they go shopping next month, nor were we allowed to vote on such a change. Additionally, what is the next step? A majority of the trash I personally see is fast-food trash. Will restaurants in Greenbelt soon be required to provide you your sandwich in your hands with no wrapping? As taxpaying citizens of Greenbelt, we deserve to see our hard-earned dollars going towards living in a clean environment and not inconveniencing our daily lives. By the chair of the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability, John Lippert’s, own admission, more than 70 percent of grocery shoppers use plastic bags. In this current economic climate, forcing residents to add on 10 cents for every paper bag used or pay over $1 per reusable bag needed at the grocery store, will further strain tight finances of Greenbelt families. The least that can be done is creating more awareness other than a post on the Greenbelt website and articles in the News Review.

Derrick Faison

The following letters were received before council decided on the process for filling the vacant seat.

Filling Vacant Seats

Some residents are promoting a special election to fill the vacancy on city council as the best solution. Let’s remind ourselves that Alonzo Washington was recently appointed by Gov. Moore to fill the Maryland senate seat vacated by Paul Pinsky. And Ashanti Martinez was appointed to fill the house of delegates seat vacated by Alonzo Washington. And a few years ago Nicole Williams was appointed to fill the house of delegates position vacated by Tawanna Gaines. (Williams was subsequently elected at the next election cycle.) Three state legislative appointments right here in our District 22. No special elections there.
Robert Snyder

Inaccuracies in Letter

I am disappointed to see that the News Review printed a letter to the editor with such glaring misinformation without a note from the editor. The letter from Scott Legendre completely misstates the City Charter requirements for filling Ric Gordon’s seat. The Charter absolutely does not say that council has two options for filling the seat; appointing or holding a special election. The Charter requires that council appoint a new member by majority vote as soon as possible. It is completely silent on how to decide who to appoint. A special election would be contrary to the Charter. Only an advisory election could be allowed, since council would still officially appoint the member, and even that option is in dispute based on the city’s counsel. I hope that this inaccuracy is corrected.

Wonka

Based on the extraordinary character at the center of Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, Roald Dahl’s most iconic children’s book and one of the best-selling children’s books of all time, the film tells the story of how the world’s greatest inventor, magician and chocolate-maker became the Willy Wonka we know today. The film stars Timothée Chalamet, Hugh Grant and Calah Lane. Said Emily Zemler of the Observer: “The film is charming and warm-hearted, much like Paddington and its sequel, and the onscreen delight is infectious.”

The Boy and the Heron

On its opening weekend, this Japanese fantasy film by animator Hayao Miyazaki topped the North American box office, a first for a Miyazaki film. Based on a novel by Genzaburō Yoshino, it tells the story of a young boy named Mahito yearning for his mother who ventures into a world shared by the living and the dead. There, death comes to an end and life finds a new beginning. The film is a semi-autobiographical fantasy about life, death and creation, in tribute to friendship.

It’s a Wonderful Life

Never seen this classic heartwarming Frank Capra Christmas film on the big screen? Here’s your chance. After George Bailey (James Stewart) wishes he had never been born, an angel (Henry Travers) is sent to earth to make George’s wish come true. George starts to realize how many lives he has changed and impacted, and how they would be different if he was never there. Also starring Donna Reed and Lionel Barrymore.

Die Hard

New York City policeman John McClane (Bruce Willis) is visiting his estranged wife (Bonnie Bedelia) on Christmas Eve. He joins her at a holiday party in the headquarters of the Japanese-owned business she works for. But the festivities are interrupted by a group of terrorists who take over the exclusive high-rise, and everyone in it. Very soon McClane realizes that there’s no one to save the hostages but him. Critics’ consensus: “Its many imitators (and sequels) have never come close to matching the taut thrills of the definitive holiday action classic.”

Free Encore Screening Of Best Documentary

Sew to Say is the Utopia Film Festival’s best documentary for 2023. The Reel and Meal at the New Deal Café will have this inspiring work in an encore screening on Monday, December 18 at 7 p.m.

The film documents the 1980s women’s vigil and protest in Greenham Common, England, determined to stop deployment of American nuclear cruise missiles there. The vigil, mostly peaceful, all female and the longest such social action in British history, stayed encamped for as long as it took to achieve their goals.

Greenbelt’s own Leeann Irwin, who participated in the Greenham Common action, will host the after-film Q&A. Irwin spent many years active there and in similar actions elsewhere in Europe and here in the U.S. She will share her experiences for what will be an uplifting evening of peace in action.

The free program starts at 7 p.m. live in the Café. Choose from a full dinner menu for the meal part of the evening.

Pollinator Plants Workshop

Come to a free workshop to learn how to make an easy mini-greenhouse out of an upcycled plastic milk or water jug and get a free kit to take home: a fully prepped jug sown with seeds of a native pollinator plant, to be left outdoors all winter. It will produce several hardy seedlings by spring.

The workshop is sponsored by the Chesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society (CHEARS). Habitats for plants are being lost to development, along with the birds, bees and butterflies that spread pollen from flower to flower as they feed, enabling plants to reproduce. These processes are crucial, as plants are the basis of our food/energy web, and every life form above them directly or indirectly depends on them.

The one-hour workshop, which will accommodate 20 participants, will take place on Saturday, December 16 at 1:30 p.m. in the Community Center, Room 103. Register ahead of time by emailing susanmarycahill@gmail.com to reserve a spot and to help the workshop planner determine how many jugs to prepare.

Backstrom Appointed as Ladies' Auxiliary Officer for the County

by Andrew McBride

Greenbelt resident Charlene Backstrom was recently appointed an officer in the Prince George's County Volunteer Fire and Rescue Association (PGCVFRA) Ladies' Auxiliary, with which she has served for 20 years. In her new role she'll oversee financial administration. Backstrom also currently serves as treasurer of the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department Ladies' Auxiliary, where she's volunteered for 25 years and is a lifetime member.

In recognition of her service and her new position, Greg Gigliotti presented Backstrom with a challenge coin from the Greenbelt American Legion Post 136.

Backstrom has lived in Greenbelt since 1971, residing mostly in Boxwood Village and raising four boys here, all of whom attended Eleanor Roosevelt High School. In addition to her involvement with the Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and the PGCVFRA, Backstrom has been part of the CERT emergency response team, Greenbelt Police Department's Citizens' Academy and a volunteer with Maryland-National Capital Park Police Volunteer Association. She's also served as Democratic chief election judge for her precinct.

Through her service, Backstrom has helped others and found joy and benefit for herself. "I've gained things such as safety, fire prevention, getting along with others, I have learned how to work a situation through and be a part of the community," she said.

"She's extremely helpful to other residents here," said Kathleen Scriven, Backstrom's Green Ridge House neighbor. "She has taken me to the doctor in Virginia, which is quite a hike. She has taken me there twice and my neighbor to physical therapy, so she has been a real blessing to people here and has only lived here a few years. She is a great representative of the type of person Greenbelt and Green Ridge want in the community," Scriven told the News Review.

Backstrom says helping people is just part of who she is. "I help people, I care about people, and when I see someone in need I want to help," she said. "I've learned a lot through my experiences and any opportunities I have to grow, and I feel the need to help the community. I am a people person who loves to take care of people." She credits her motivation to help others to her faith, saying, "I learned through my faith that God has given me the gift of mercy, which means giving my gift to people. I have been able to be a part of the community and help others through my spiritual walk."

BRING YOUR OWN BAG

Effective January 1, 2024, the City of Greenbelt's Bring Your Own Bag bill aims to reduce single-use plastic bag waste and litter in our local waterways and tributary system.

The Bring Your Own Bag bill will prohibit a retail establishment from providing a plastic carryout bag to shoppers and can charge at least 10 cents for each paper bag provided to a customer at the point of sale.

For more information on this bill, visit www.greenbeltmd.gov/BYOBag.

Police, Firefighters, City Staff Recognized for Exemplary Service

by Butch Hicks

On December 2, the Greenbelt American Legion Post 136 hosted the 35th Annual Public Safety Awards Program. Master of Ceremonies, Post 136 Commander Greg Gigliotti, addressing the crowd of over 150 attendees, said, “We appreciate the opportunity to recognize the selfless contributions made to our community by our local police officers, firefighters, emergency medical technicians and public works employees. You brave men and women respond day-in and day-out to emergencies and the needs of our citizens. Your dedication to the safety and welfare of our citizens is inspirational.”

Erick Alvarez

Greenbelt Police Officer of the Year is Erick Alvarez, the community officer assigned to Franklin Park. The Marine Corps veteran, a young officer of 25, provides proactive, patient, attentive engagement with the community, particularly youths.

Alvarez’s award described him as “passionate and always going the extra mile.” He has earned multiple letters of commendation and a unit citation. He promotes police-community partnerships and neighborhood camaraderie through his participation in the Police Department’s community events such as Trunk or Treat, Meet and Greet, and National Night Out. Police Chief Richard Bowers said, “Officer Alvarez is a well-rounded police officer who takes the initiative and approaches issues with creative thinking.”

Maria Auchter

Property and Evidence Specialist Maria Auchter was recognized for her dedication and the professionalism of her service, including in the communication unit, crime scene investigations and photography training.

“I like being behind the scenes, seeing activity from the officers’ point of view,” she said. “Proper evidence gathering, paying attention to seemingly small, minute things, could provide a big break in case investigation.”

Bowers said, “In Ms. Auchter’s more than nine years of service, she has shown constant dedication to whatever job position she’s held, whatever task she’s undertaken.”

Aleksi Korpela

Aleks Korpela is the 2023 Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad’s Firefighter/EMT of the Year. He moved from Iceland to Greenbelt and, looking for new experiences, he became a volunteer firefighter in 2022. “I found it all interesting, including how many people volunteer hundreds of hours each year providing their free time to serve their communities. Something else I found interesting was the professional firefighters associated with our organization who upon completing their work shifts will go home and then return to the station as volunteers.”

Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad Chief Thomas Ray lauded Korpela’s extensive hours of training and willingness to volunteer for extra services, in addition to his full-time job and family responsibilities. “The officers and members thank you for your service to our department and the community that you live in,” Ray said.

Andrew Boyle,
Brandon VanTreese

Berwyn Heights Volunteer Fire Department and Rescue Squad, Inc. named two firefighters as Firefighters of the Year. Sergeant Andrew Boyle and Lieutenant Brandon VanTreese, both second-generation firefighters, were recognized for rescuing a resident from the fully-involved burning home.

“Because we had worked together, we knew what each was going to do,” said Boyle.

“We needed to find her quickly, and we needed to get her out of the house fast as the fire was rapidly spreading,” said VanTreese. “We did remove her and had her transported to a hospital where she recovered.”

Chief Ben Ross praised VanTreese and Boyle and nominated them as Firefighters of the Year “for their quick response without the protection of a hose line, and for their unusual zeal, bravery and teamwork.”

Bring Your Own Reusable Bag To Hold Items at Checkout

by John Lippert

All Greenbelt establishments providing goods and services in Greenbelt, including grocery stores, restaurants, department stores and small businesses, must stop giving out plastic film carryout bags beginning on January 1, 2024.

Only single-use plastic film bags given at the point of sale are banned. It does not include a plastic bag used to package or contain bulk items such as fruits, vegetables, nuts, grains, candy or small hardware items; fresh meat or seafood; flowers, potted plants or other damp items; unwrapped prepared foods or bakery goods; dry-cleaned clothes; or a plastic bag used to take live fish, insects, mollusks or crustaceans away from a retail establishment.

So, if gathering produce items from the produce department of the grocery store, you may still use the small plastic bags provided as well as for Greenbelt Farmers Market produce and flowers. Of course, you are encouraged to bring your own bag for these items when at all possible. For more information, email Luisa Robles, sustainability coordinator, at lrobles@greenbeltmd.gov.

John Lippert is chair of the Greenbelt Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability, Green ACES.

Middle School Team Is Again The Science Bowl Champion

A measure of the talent at Science Bowl's Middle Schools championships could be read by the number of incorrect numbers out of the 90 questions asked: just two. Starting with 16 middle schools back in September, the final four at the Bonnie Johns Media Center's television studio on Tuesday, November 14 were Accokeek, Kettering, Greenbelt and Robert Goddard. After two semifinal games, the two finalists emerging to vie for the championship were two former champs, Greenbelt (having won in 2016) and Robert Goddard (winning in 2021).

After a fiercely fought game, noted for both its near perfection and great sportsmanship, Greenbelt's team was awarded individual gold medals for their well-deserved win. Robert Goddard, also an excellent team and a perennial contender, won silver medals.

Hudson, Joseph Hudson, Xiaoqing Cai and Robert Said. Their coaches are Manuela Pagunsan and Gonzalo Pitpit and the school principal is Marcellus Clement.

A generational science bowl note: Lu's father was in the studio to cheer on his daughter and to reminisce. He had been a Science Bowl contestant back in 1989, playing for Dwight D. Eisenhower Middle School. Science Bowl is now in its 38th year, having started in 1986.

ERHS Implements Weapons Detector for Students, Visitors

This week Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) was set to begin utilizing a weapons detection system at the main front entrance. The initiation was delayed on Monday due to the two-hour school delay.

The weapons detection system is part of a mandate for all Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) secondary schools and was announced in the summer by the district's new superintendent, Millard House II.

A message from ERHS Principal Portia Barnes said all students and visitors will walk through a weapons detection system at the main front entrance upon arrival at the school. The entry/arrival process will take longer than usual in the first days of the rollout, she warned, and asked for patience.

To streamline entry to the school Barnes said all students should have clear backpacks or book bags (which was also a new mandate for all PGCPS secondary schools this fall). "Non-clear backpacks will be retained, stored for the day and returned at the end of the school day; they will not be allowed into class," said her letter, dated December 7. ERHS has been providing clear backpacks to students free of charge and will continue to while their limited supply lasts.

Upon arrival, students must now remove their Chromebook computers from their clear backpacks and place them on a table before walking through the weapons detector. Students should not have anything in their hands when they enter the school building except their Chromebook, instructed the letter.

"Our goal is to maximize the safety for all students and staff, and these security enhancements provide another tool toward that goal," said Barnes.

First Snow Causes School Delays

by Anna Bedford-Dillow

On Monday Greenbelt saw its first snowfall of the season. Though it was only a dusting in Greenbelt, it caused significant disruption for local schools. At approximately 6:25 a.m., Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) announced a two-hour delay. The school system reported fewer than 20 buses were already on the road by 6 a.m. and the Department of Transportation was in touch with them. PGCPS instructed Special Education buses to drop students back at home and made calls to parents to arrange hand-to-hand drop-off for students who had already boarded their buses for school. "Any students without a parent contact will remain with Transportation," said PGCPS in their Facebook announcement at 6:29 a.m. "There will be no work-study transportation," said the announcement. "Those students should not report to school."

There was no half-day Early Childhood Center, half-day special education programs nor half-day Pre-K and all field trips were cancelled on Monday.

Monday evening PGCPS sent an email to parents apologizing for inconvenience or disruption to their morning. "Unfortunately, the late development of snowfall in some areas necessitated a recommendation to delay opening that was approved at 5:50 a.m. with the preparation of community notices beginning at 6:00 a.m.

As such, our standard notification timeline was impacted," they said in the message.

"Decisions to delay or close schools are never taken lightly, and are always made with the safety of students and staff as our first priority," said the PGCPS email. Parents who did not receive notification of the delayed opening are advised to check that their contact information in the SchoolMax Family Portal is accurate and to sign up for emergency alerts via phone and text message at asp.schoolmessenger.com/pgcps/subscriber.

a public hearing before council chose a replacement. In the past the process took between one week to 63 days to complete.

Jordan asked Steven Gilbert, chair of Greenbelt’s Board of Elections, about holding a special election to fill the vacancy, with ballots mailed to all residents in early February 2024 and returned by the end of that month. Gilbert estimated that the total cost of this election would range from $50-60K, not counting the time required by city staff and volunteers. All of this could take four to five months to complete, another reason Jordan spoke against the option, saying council should instead act promptly to fill the vacancy.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts advocated for holding what he called a non-binding advisory city election that council then would use to select a new member. He argued that the charter is wide open on this subject. Jordan disagreed, emphasizing the “as soon as possible” stipulated in the charter. Councilmember Silke Pope agreed with Jordan that council’s task was to fill the vacancy as soon as possible. She advocated selecting the eighth candidate from the recent election who had received over 40 percent of the vote for the now-vacant seventh seat. Roberts responded that there is no rule requiring council to choose this candidate. Roberts also pointed out that if Greenbelt can afford to spend, as it soon will, $125,000 on a drinking fountain for dogs, it can afford to fund a special election for the sake of democracy. Councilmember Jenni Pompei noted that in 2018-19 Berwyn Heights twice replaced members on its council by asking for applications and then interviewing prospective candidates before making its decision. Jordan returned to the option of choosing the eighth candidate in Greenbelt’s recent election, then asked those attending among the public to respond. Dawn Warner, noting that Ric Gordon had died only 19 days after the election, asked if not the eighth candidate, then who, what? Leon Schachter maintained instead that the best qualified candidate should be chosen, that the process should be open to candidates other than the person who came in eighth. Jane Young stated that she had voted before and didn’t want to vote again, especially since the eighth candidate was still available to fill the vacancy. John Lippert added that this eighth candidate had jumped through all of the hoops to run, so council should stick with this individual. Carla Gordon, widow of Ric Gordon, spoke in support of council choosing this eighth candidate to fill the vacancy.

City Attorney Jason DeLoach then entered the discussion, stating flatly that the city charter did not grant council the authority to hold a special election. In response to Pompei’s question about calling for applicants, DeLoach answered that Greenbelt can have a truncated application process. What might as soon as possible mean? DeLoach suggested a timeline of 45 but not 90 days would fulfill the requirement. Roberts stuck with the idea of Greenbelt holding an advisory election to give citizens a say in this process, stating that once the winners had been sworn in, an election was over. An online participant disputed that the public had spoken for their preference through the last election, since they hadn’t voted for eight candidates and to take the eighth would be “disenfranchisement.” Michael Miller spoke from the audience calling for the council to “embrace the middle road,” to accept applications in a process that would last perhaps 30 days and involve public hearings with council ultimately making the decision.

Motion for an Advisory Election

Roberts’ proposal to hold a non-binding advisory election to fill the vacancy was voted on and failed, with only Roberts voting in favor and all others against.

Motion to Appoint Eighth Vote-Getter from Recent Election

Pope then made the motion that council appoint the eighth candidate from the most recent election. Pope’s motion was seconded by Jordan.

“We just had an election four weeks ago ... The 40 percent are there, he came in eighth, it doesn’t matter whose name is there, it’s about the process ... As Mrs. Gordon said, if it would have been a different name then we wouldn’t have all this discussion ... If you come eighth, this was the next person in line,” said Pope, who suggested the charter should be amended to reflect this. Jordan also spoke in favor of this being the process within three months of an election. Resident Trent Lierman spoke against selecting someone from the last election. He asked the council to think about what standard they’ll use to pick the next candidate and who is the most qualified. He also noted that while Matthew Inzeo got the eighth highest number of votes, it was the second election he’d run in in which he failed to get the votes needed to get elected. Lierman asked council for an apolitical process. Pope responded saying they couldn’t ignore over 1,000 votes for the eighth person, who is the most logical person to appoint. Speaking online, Bob Rudd echoed Pope’s sentiments and asked council to “seat Matthew Inzeo now.” Ed Fallon sent comments, read by Jordan, that only 7 percent of those registered voted for the eighth candidate. Jordan read a comment referencing Inzeo’s past but stopped, saying, “I shouldn’t have read that,” and insisting he wanted to consider the process rather than the person.

Weaver said it seemed to her less democratic to go with a public forum in which fewer people might participate than did in the recent election. She was particularly concerned about unequal participation by different parts of the city.

The vote to appoint the eighth highest vote-getter from the recent election failed 3-3 with Pope, Jordan and Weaver voting in favor and McKinney, Pompei and Roberts voting no.

Application Process

Jordan then suggested a nomination period of just one week for nominees. He suggested a question-answer session between councilmembers and candidates with the same set of questions for all. He said the public could weigh in with comments afterward but not directly address the candidates. Councilmember Danielle McKinney agreed that it should move forward as quickly as possible and ensure that voices across the community are heard, not only those that regularly speak in elections. Weaver agreed and suggested a hearing in Franklin Park and Schrom Hills Park. “Going this route we need to make sure we hear from the widest cross-section of people possible,” she said. She noted council didn’t have another regular meeting until January 8 so they did not need to rush the process to meet the end of the year.

Roberts argued that one week was insufficient for new candidates to submit all the necessary paperwork. “This is not a horse race,” he said, “and as soon as possible does not mean in one week.” Weaver clarified that she felt one week was enough time for people to put their résumé forward but was more concerned that more time would be needed to get feedback from the public about those candidates.

DeLoach responded that residents can comment by letter or email and council can consider them on the same day that it holds a special meeting. The idea was that council choose a replacement at its next open meeting, on January 8. Roberts stressed that this process should not be rushed, to which Jordan responded that the budget process requires time to learn, so speed is important. One challenge will be getting information out effectively on what is required of candidates, and when. Weaver recommended more time to make this fair for candidates who are not well known.

Jordan moved that nominations be opened on December 14 and closed on the 20th. The same guidelines as used before in elections will be followed, requiring for example a petition with 50 signatures by supporters indicating widespread support in Greenbelt and a completed financial disclosure form. City Manager Josué Salmerón recommended later that candidates also submit a statement of intent that includes biographical information and explains why this person wishes to be chosen. After December 20, candidates will have an opportunity to speak and the public a chance to weigh in. After more bickering among councilmembers over details, the motion that council provide an application and interview process to fill its vacant seat passed. Applications will be due by December 20 and discussions begun on December 21. Council will make its decision on January 3 and will swear in its new member on January 8.

attendees in singing Hanukkah songs during and after the performance.

After the play, everyone enjoyed latkes (potato pancakes) and donuts. Fried foods like these are traditional because, in the Hanukkah story, a small amount of oil that should have lasted only one night lasted for eight. This miracle allowed the Jewish resistance fighters, or Maccabees, to keep a light burning continuously after they reconquered the temple. The party wrapped up in the early afternoon with menorah lighting and a singalong.

Mishkan Torah's Children's Education Committee, which co-sponsored the party along with the Sisterhood, is planning to host more events for children and families this winter and spring. These include a playgroup and story time for preschool-aged children on Sunday, December 17 from 10:30 a.m. to noon and events related to the upcoming holidays of Tu B'Shvat and Purim. 2024. Perry emphasized that GHI is in a "strong financial position." All documents detailing changes to the budget for 2024 are available to all members on the Yardi member portal, and letters will be mailed soon to all members regarding their 2024 fees.

Pipe Replacement Program
Most of the meeting was a presentation by Claggett and Thomas Williams, GHI's director of technical services, concerning the upcoming pipe replacement program. They explained how the water pipes, especially in the frame homes, are at the end of their expected life and are experiencing a high rate of failure. After much research and planning, volunteers for a pilot project have been selected, a firm has been selected to provide engineering services, and a request for proposal for contractors to bid on the work has been drafted. The first phase of the pilot project is due to begin in March 2024 and will provide useful information about the best method of replacement and the impact of a home's pipe replacement on members. The entire project of replacing the pipes in frame homes is expected to take about 10 years, and then plans will be made to replace the water pipes in masonry homes, the larger homes and then additions. Claggett and Williams provided information about the funding of the project from replacement reserves and reminded members that all information provided at the town hall was also available on the Yardi member portal. Members had many questions, some of which couldn't be answered at this stage of the project, but were reassured that homes would be restored to what is currently there after the replacement is completed and that no other ongoing projects in the homes would be affected by the pipe replacement program.

Krampus Festival

On the evening of Saturday, December 9, Roosevelt Center was filled with music, dancing and impressive costumes for the Krampus Festival. Krampus is a horned character from Alpine folklore said to punish naughty children when St. Nicholas rewards the good.

Greenbelters came out to enjoy SCAROLS, funky versions of favorite Christmas carols, with the Greenbelt Honk! Situation band. Members of the band and some festival-goers dressed as Krampus characters. A Toys for Tots collection was also held.

Venture Crew’s Third Winter Wonderland Builds Community

by Andrew McBride

Greenbelt Venture Crew 746 hosted its third annual Winter Wonderland at the Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church on Saturday. The Winter Wonderland included a lighted woodland walk, Santa and his antique firetruck, caroling and live music, winter displays, including a live nativity scene, and much more.

“The highlight of every year has been seeing the twinkle in the kids’ eyes when they get to talk to Santa,” said Greenbelt Volunteer Fire Department member Brian Roberts. “It brings the community together, you’ve got all the groups in Greenbelt coming together for a common event,” added Roberts.

“I know these children appreciate it. It’s magical, and everyone likes to have some good magic in their life,” said William Dobbin, who was Santa for the event. “It helps to instill community togetherness; if you look around this is wonderful. These people worked so hard to set up all these different displays,” Dobbin told the News Review.

One of these groups was Greenbelt Recreation, which had a table set up with snacks and trail maps that people could use for biking and hiking. “It seems like people are definitely enjoying it, especially little kids,” said Park Ranger Liz Thomas, who ran Greenbelt Recreation’s table.

During the last hour of the event, a band made up of Greenbelt residents welcomed the holiday spirit with Christmas songs. “Oh, I love these community events because Greenbelt is so cool and I love the support from all the local people that come out,” said Rachel Canavan, who played the ukulele for the band. “It seems like this event is thriving, and I hope it continues to go on for many years when my kids are bigger and are a part of the fundraising themselves,” said Canavan.

The Pandemic Sisters and Dave play Christmas music for Wonderland visitors.

The event was a fundraiser for the Venture Crew, to support their outdoor programs and make camping equipment and activities open to all Greenbelt teens interested in joining them. For more on the Winter Wonderland see p. 9 of the November 30 issue.
